

College of Physicians and Surgeons of British Columbia

Practice Standard

Leaving Practice

Effective:	June 1995
Last revised:	June 4, 2018
Version:	4.0
Next review:	June 2021
Related topic(s):	Medical Records

A practice standard reflects the minimum standard of professional behaviour and ethical conduct on a specific topic or issue expected by the College of all physicians in British Columbia. Standards also reflect relevant legal requirements and are enforceable under the Health Professions Act, RSBC 1996, c.183 (HPA) and College Bylaws under the HPA.

Registrants may seek advice on these issues by contacting the College and asking to speak with a member of the registrar staff, or by seeking medical legal advice from the CMPA.

PREAMBLE

This is a practice standard of the Board of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of British Columbia.

This standard sets out practice management considerations to ensure the continuity of patient care and the preservation of patient records in situations where physicians cease to practise, take an extended leave of absence, or close/relocate their medical practice.

COLLEGE'S POSITION

Physicians must act in accordance with the standards set out below:

1. Notification

- Physicians must provide patients with notification that they will be leaving or restricting practice as soon as possible after it becomes apparent in order to allow patients ample time to make alternate care arrangements. Where possible, a minimum of three months is considered appropriate.
- Physicians must document reasonable efforts to provide notification to patients in person or alternatively, by way of a detailed letter, secure email or a telephone call advising of their planned departure date, how patients can access copies of their medical records and other information as appropriate, such as the name of the physician who is taking over the practice, whether or not there are partners or associates in the practice who are accepting new patients, or whether there are other physicians in the community who are accepting new patients.
- Where, because of the nature of the physician's practice or the care being provided, there is no expectation of an ongoing physician-patient relationship (e.g. emergency room physicians, and/or some consultants), the physician is only expected to notify those patients to whom they are actively providing care.
- If it is not possible to recruit a replacement to take over the practice, patients must be advised of specific contingency plans. For example, if only the medically vulnerable, high-needs patients will be placed and all others must make their own arrangements, this must be explicitly communicated.
- A handout and/or visible signage must be placed in the physician's waiting area and the office voice mail message must provide the above information.
- Physicians must provide notification of extended or permanent leave to individuals and agencies involved in the management of patients. The list includes, but may not be limited to, office staff, diagnostic facilities (laboratory and imaging), the regional health authority, the Medical Services Plan, WorkSafeBC, ICBC, the CMPA, and all physicians to which he or she regularly refers and/or receives referrals. This notification must include the date of departure, the forwarding address, the person's name and address to whom correspondence and reports may be sent, and the information about the arrangements made for storing and accessing patient medical records.¹

¹ College Bylaws require physicians to immediately notify the registrar of any change in business address or other registration information.

- Specialists must not accept patients in consultation if they do not expect to be able to complete their treatment.

2. Medical records

- Physicians must make arrangements for either the retention or transfer of patient medical records.
- Where the physician continues to be in the custodian of the records, he or she, subject to the limited exceptions in the Personal Information Protection Act (PIPA),² must provide patients with access to a copy of their medical records on request.
- Where the physician has transferred patient records to another physician or a medical records storage provider, he or she must provide patients with the information necessary to access a copy of their medical records.
- Physicians must notify the College of the location of patient medical records and how patients may access these records.
- Physicians are advised to refer to the College's standard, Medical Records, for detailed information about the expectations of physicians around providing enduring access to medical records as well as the transfer, retention, and destruction of medical records.

3. Patients requiring ongoing care

- Physicians must identify their patients who are under acute, active treatment, and make reasonable efforts to place them, which must be documented.
- Physicians must arrange for follow-up on any outstanding reports or test results so that patients are aware of how to access results or copies of their records.

Physicians are reminded that it is best practice to have a contingency plan in place in the event of sudden death or other circumstances where the physician is abruptly unavailable.

² Personal Information Protection Act, SBC 2003, Chapter 63, Section 29