Library services

AccessMedicine

Physicians can earn CPD credit for conducting research using AccessMedicine to answer a clinical question for patient care. Registrants can earn 0.5 American Medical Association (AMA) PRA Category 1 credits for each search they conduct.

- [The College of Family Physicians of Canada \[2\]](#) (CFPC) accepts AMA PRA Category 1 credits.
- Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada (RCPSC) has a reciprocal agreement with the AMA. Members are eligible for MOC credits for AMA PRA Category 1 credits. This agreement is in place until December 31, 2020. For more information, click [here \[3\]](#).

Article reading

Registrants can request articles online at any time. Articles sent to registrants including those ordered from [Cites & Bytes \[4\]](#) are eligible for credits from the RCPSC's [MOC Program \[5\]](#): Section 2 – journal reading.

Bibliographies

Bibliographies on a specific clinical question can be requested by filling out the Literature Search Requests form on the College website.

- CFPC members: Bibliographies regarding clinical queries are eligible for step 2 of a Pearls [6] exercise.
- RCPSC members: Bibliographies supporting a personal learning project may be uploaded to MAINPORT [7].

BMJ Best Practice

CFPC members are eligible to receive up to 20 Mainpro+ Self Learning credits for using BMJ Best Practice. The CFPC has a reciprocal CPD agreement with the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP). Registrants can claim CPD credits with BMJ Best Practice in two ways:

1. Log into your CFPC profile, select AAFP credits and indicate use of BMJ Best Practice as the resource.
2. Enter BMJ Best Practice as other certification activity within Mainpro+.

ClinicalKey

Earn CPD credits for self-directed, structured online learning through ClinicalKey. Registrants can earn 0.5 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit for each search they conduct. CFPC accepts AMA PRA Category 1 credits.

- CFPC [8] accepts AMA PRA Category 1 credits.
- RCPSC has a reciprocal agreement with the AMA. Members are eligible for MOC credits for AMA PRA Category 1 credits. This agreement is in place until December 31, 2020. For more information, click here [3].
- From the RCPSC, use of ClinicalKey can be claimed as part of a Personal Learning Project (PLP) at 2 credits per hour.

DynaMed

Earn 0.5 Mainpro+ certified Self-Learning credits from CFPC and MOC (Section 2) program credits from RCPSC for each topic reviewed (online version only).

Podcasts

A collection of podcasts for those who prefer an audio learning experience. Podcasts with CPD options are identified in the CPD column on our Podcast [9] page.

Workshops

- FAST EVIDENCE is a half-day, interactive course that teaches physicians how to conduct effective internet searches in order to find credible and evidence-based medical information from a variety of databases and other credible online sources. Designed for a small group of up to 12 learners, the course is facilitated by two CPSBC Librarians who provide learners with hands-on learning support in a computer lab setting. Register at UBC CPD [10]. This course is eligible for:
 - 16.5 Mainpro [11]+ (3cr/hr).
 - 5.5 MOC Program [5] - Section 3.

College of Family Physicians of Canada

The CFPC provides a variety of programs and services to family physicians in meeting their continuing professional development goals through numerous programs. Information can be found on their Continuing Professional Development [12] page.
